Re Item V

- Reasoned statement under Rule 66.2(a)(ii) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

1. Independent claim 1

1.1 The document 'High modulation burner for liquid fuels based on porous media combustion and cool flame vaporization', 'TRIMIS AND ALL', 'SIXTH INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON TECHNOLOGIES AND COMBUSTION FOR A CLEAN ENVIRONMENT', 'Porto, Portugal', 2, paper 23.1//09-07-2001, -, 12-07-2001 will be referred to hereafter as D1 and is considered as the closest prior art with regard to the subject-matter of claim 1.

D1 discloses a process for the combustion of an Industrial Gas Oil (see page 1, column 2, line 54 to page 2, column 1, line 2) including the following steps:

- obtaining a mixture of liquid hydrocarbon droplets in an oxygen containing gaseous phase (see page 2, column 1, lines 2-3),
- evaporating the liquid hydrocarbon droplets to obtain a gaseous mixture comprising oxygen and hydrocarbon (see page 2, column 1, lines 3-6),
- burning the totality of the mixture obtained in the previous step (see page 2, column 1, lines 16-24).

1.2 The subject-matter of claim 1 differs from the teachings of D1 in the use of a specific type of Industrial Gas Oil: Fischer-Tropsch derived hydrocarbon fuels. However, the fact of selecting the most appropriate type fuel for a given combustion system falls within the scope of a the normal engineer design activity and can only involve an inventive step when the choice of such a fuel leads to unexpected effects or properties.

The properties of Fischer-Tropsch derived fuel to reduce emissions and deposits which are mentioned in the application are well known (see for example US-A1-6056793, column 6, lines 51-54 and DE-A1-19517537 page 2, lines 22-37) and can therefore not be considered as surprising effects.

1.3 The subject-matter of independent claim 1 can therefore not be considered as involving an inventive step in the sense of Article 33(3) PCT.
